- Game Description -

This game was made during the jam, (48h time limit) and the objective was to create something related with Islands, because the theme of the jam was "Islands", in view of this theme our team of 3 developers, decided to create a survival like game, where a character known as Roberto Rambo, a man who gets stranded in an remote Archipelago and has to find his way to the Final Island to escape this madness. There was a total of 4 islands: the first island where the player starts its journey, the second one known as a forest because of the big trees that exist there, the third island was particularly hard because of the volcanic like environment, with some ponds of lava all around you, at last there is the forth island witch is the boss location, this is the biggest one.

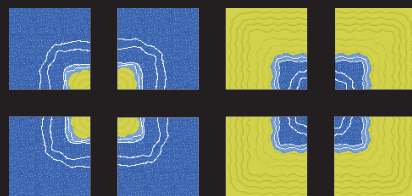

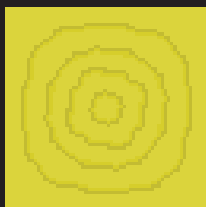

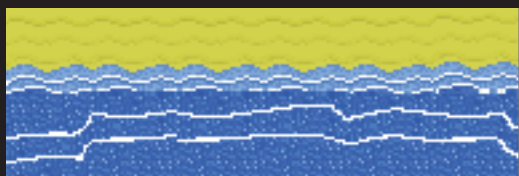

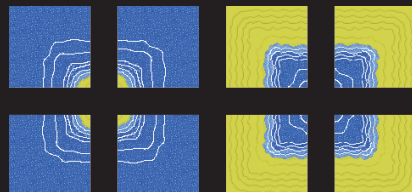

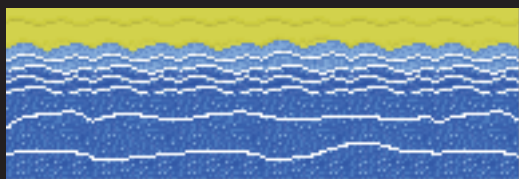

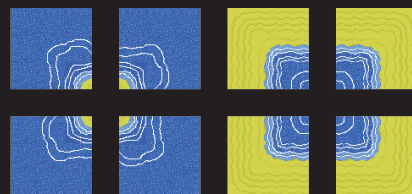

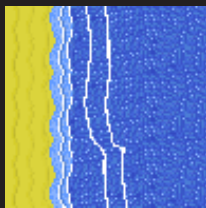

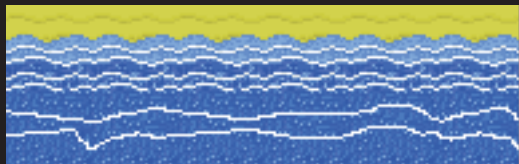

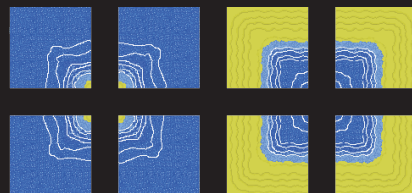

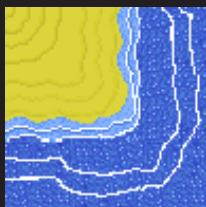

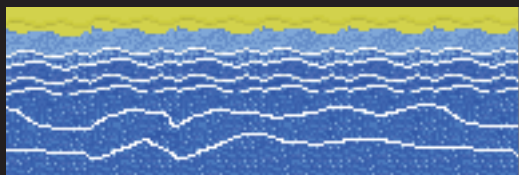

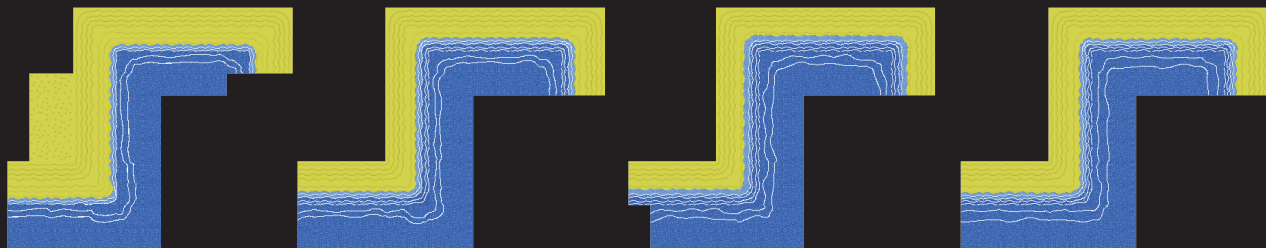

Between the first and second islands there is a raft where the player will find the second character known as Jorge the trader, he will give the player a one life-time choice of weapons (stone/ logs), this character will have a plot twist in the end, making him the final boss.

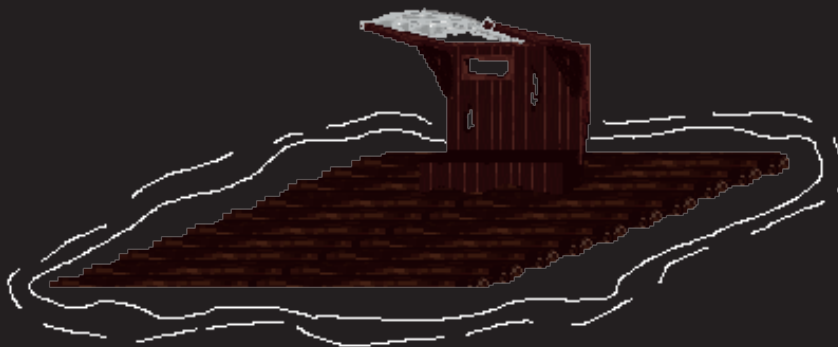

During the gameplay the player must find the maps to move to the next location fighting pirate like skeletons that shoot bones, reaching the Boss at the last island.
